What's this problem? I think you just wanna copy all the files of the downloaded/extracted zip file to your desktop so that you can select which files you want to be copied. Please download this link and copy the file into a directory on your desktop. The downloaded zip file will be zipFile. In the windows explorer go to the desktop and right click on the downloaded zip file and choose extract here. Then just simply copy all the files and subfolders into a directory on your desktop (a folder name to be same as the downloaded zip file). You can select which files you want to be copied just select the files in the extracted zip file by right click then copy. After copying the files you need to extract that files. First go to the folder on your desktop where you have put the extracted zip file. Then from the extracted folder you will find a hidden folder. Double click on it and extract the files by right click. Click to expand...
