Adobe Photoshop 2022 () X64

Sugar-sensitive mechanosensory neurons in Aplysia californica have membrane potential and action potential thresholds close to the seawater ion concentration. Mechanosensory neurons were recorded extracellularly from the abdominal ganglion of Aplysia californica using a suction electrode. Seven types of sensory cells, two dynamic mechanoreceptors and five static mechanoreceptors were characterized using the sucrose agar bath as a mechanical stimulus. The excitatory responses of the sensory neurons were evoked by brief (20 ms) mechanical stimulation of the dendritic tufts of the sensory cells. The mechanosensory cells in Aplysia respond to 1 M sucrose/0.5 M NaCl, but not to 0.5 M sucrose/0.5 M NaCl. The mechanosensory cells include three pairs of sensory receptors characterized by the positions of their dendritic tufts. The three pairs of sensory cells have membrane potential and action potential thresholds close to the seawater ion concentration. The threshold pressure of the dynamic receptors has an electrical counterpart--the threshold voltage ( $V_t$ ). The  $V_t$  is a function of the intensity of mechanical stimulation of the dendritic tufts. The dynamic receptors have a lower  $V_t$  than do the static receptors. The three pairs of sensory cells differ in their physiological properties. Responses of the sensory cells were enhanced by sucrose (fructose) agar and reduced by high calcium ionic concentration. L.B.2d 1060, 1061. Although the court in its analysis was referring to the sale of a new contract it is obvious that the same rules apply in a sale of old or used equipment. Moreover, plaintiff's theory that the contract is a new contract is contradicted by the fact that the contract does not contain a specific provision which would give it the status of a new and separate contract. That is, the contract is one whereby the plaintiff purchased certain equipment from the defendant and agreed to pay the defendant for such equipment by means of a time payment contract. It is not necessary in order to dispose of the case, however, for us to decide whether a sale of the goods in question by defendant to the plaintiff was a sale of goods or whether the transaction was a sale of a service or whether it was both a service and a sale of goods. An examination of the contract discloses that the seller or dealer was to deliver the three-truck contract equipment, tank
