A comparison of the efficacy and safety of the grapefruit juice extracts of warfarin with that of vitamin K in the management of portal vein thrombosis. The efficacy and safety of warfarin and vitamin K were compared in a double-blind trial in patients with portal vein thrombosis. Eighteen patients received warfarin and 20 received vitamin K. The time to recanalize the thrombosed portal vein was significantly longer in patients treated with warfarin. Hepatic insufficiency was more common in patients on warfarin. The incidence of side effects was similar in both groups. In conclusion, warfarin is not effective in the treatment of portal vein thrombosis. IT'S a crazy idea. Admitting that his campaign is having a problem in Kansas: Don't attack unpopular Democratic Gov. Kathleen Sebelius. But that's Newt Gingrich's strategy in the most telling sub-Clinton-and-Gore speech of the campaign, delivered last night in Worcester, Mass. It was a speech of sharp contrast to the one he delivered just the previous night in Philadelphia, which was aimed at highlighting his executive experience while ignoring the substance of his likely governing agenda. In Kansas, Gingrich attacked Sebelius for her signing off on the hated Senate health-care bill. But instead of the language of campaign politics that we've heard from Gingrich and his peers all along, he took a lower blow, telling a crowd of more than 1,000 people that in embracing health care Sebelius would do “guts things that seem radical.” “The problem that we have in America is not that we have a government,” said Gingrich. “The problem that we have is that we have a government that doesn’t have the guts to reform itself.”

Gingrich has increasingly found his campaign in tough patch, following the attacks on his record by Ron Paul and Mitt Romney, and more recently on the Sebelius decision. Now, at long last, Gingrich has stopped trying to duck the issue. His emphasis on the need for bold, tough solutions to problems — especially when he talks about the role of government in our lives and our economy — was a striking departure for a candidate who has long shied away from policy proposals. And he did so while making an extremely positive argument that seemed to have a lot more to it than a typical politician's rhetoric.

April 17, 2012 I have a daschund and I'm feeling totally fed up with her attitude so I was on the phone to the spay/neuter clinic this week and the woman who answered asked me for her age, breed, reason for getting sterilized and the sex of the dog. Her response when I told her "I'd like to spay and neuter the dog but I want to do it on the spot" was "Why don't you wait till she's a year old and she'll be easier and she will get a nicer temperament". I was really in pain at this point and I said "I'd really like to spay and neuter her but the condition that she is in makes it impossible, and I'm just not getting anywhere with her". At this point she said that it's a very difficult decision to make and there's no hard and fast rule as to when a dog should be spayed/neutered. I really don't know where to turn next. My heart tells me to spay and neuter her, but it also tells me that my time would be better spent keeping her happy and healthy. I'm just beginning to understand the concept of spaying and neutering my dog, and while I'm sure it's the right thing to do, I'm a little confused. I found on another thread that on-the-spot spay/neuter is a no-no for dogs under 5.5 months old, but I'm 4 months and 8 weeks. The vet says that it's unnecessary for my daschund at this age. I would really appreciate any advice/advice you can give me. The best way to spay a dog is with anesthesia but at your age you would want to have the surgery done by a vet who does it all the time. I was 5 1/2 years old when I got my first dog and I was a little nervous about having surgery. A little
