Zlatan Ibrahimovic's union with Manchester United had been on the up and up for a while now, but it's been a long time since Ibrahimovic hit the form that made him the dominant striker he is today. The best way to judge a striker is by gauging his goals scored from open play, and while Ibrahimovic hasn't been as prolific this term he's still just missing out on that total of 14 goals. But with United visiting neighbours Manchester City on Wednesday and Chelsea at home on Saturday, there was a golden opportunity to gain the all-important three points and, of course, he didn't miss it. Silky @Zlatan12 Signing 25 goals this season. One could argue he's been the best in the world this season. ✓ #MUFC #MCFC pic.twitter.com/SbYHppgkQa — OptaJoe (@OptaJoe) December 7, 2017 Ibrahimovic is now second in the latest list of the season's top scorers, level with Luis Suarez, behind only Harry Kane and one ahead of Mohamed Salah, who are sharing the Premier League's top spot in the all-time top scorer table. The fact he's been so prolific while missing the majority of the season through injury and suspension only adds to his importance to Jose Mourinho's and Manchester United's future. What's more, Ibrahimovic has been so good for Manchester United that he seems to have made a certain Chilean professional want to sign him for the Santiago club. That man is Alexis Sanchez. Although Jose Mourinho and Manchester United have denied that player is on his way to Old Trafford this month. If they were to reach an agreement Sanchez will instantly be regarded as the best signing of the season by any football club, and that's something that could be off the back of this match against Manchester City. Whatever Mourinho decides to do with Sanchez, the 29-year-old's record in England stands in stark contrast to his record in France with Barcelona. Only four players have won back-to-back league titles with the La Liga club, and Sanchez is the only player in that timeframe to score a goal in each of those seasons. Sanchez, of course, is yet to sign a contract extension with United this term, and it remains to be seen whether that will change

The Pen or Brush Tool is a great tool that allows you to draw in any direction on the photo. This tool can be used for retouching photos, adding or deleting objects, creating a stencil, or painting over an image. This is a very useful tool. You can either select a brush from the Brushes panel in Photoshop or use the drawing tools of the Pen tool. Effects give your images a vintage feel or make your photo pop. You can choose from a variety of them, including blur, emboss, gradient, saturation, tint, and vignette. The filters tab in Photoshop's Creative Cloud application provides access to a slew of filters with a variety of settings. You can apply effects, like blurs, distortion, and toning, to photos, drawing, and shapes. Choosing a color scheme Now that you've taken a picture of your family, you're not only busy trying to assemble a complete family photo album, but also you also need to try to find a way to create the perfect color scheme. There are a few things you need to consider. First, you'll want to choose a color palette that complements your image, a color that goes well with the textures and colors of your image. For example, if your photo is a shot of your family, you might decide to use a warm color palette. This is a color palette that includes colors in the red, orange and yellow range, like bronze, gold, red and marigold. You can, however, also use a cool palette if the family is in front of a green environment, like a park, or a beach. With a cool palette, you should use colors in the green range, like blue, green and purple. You should also avoid using bright blues and reds. Color scheme tips There are two things you'll want to consider when picking a color palette: contrast and vibrancy. For example, if you're shooting a beach scene, you will want to use cool colors because the image doesn't need a lot of contrast. Or if you're shooting a portrait, you may want to use bright colors to emphasize the focus. Sometimes, there is no right or wrong color scheme. In fact, it's totally your choice. As a general rule, though, we recommend avoiding the use of red, orange and yellow
