Q: How to get a probability of a random variable X greater than X_n in R for a set of n data points X_n ? I'm trying to get a probability of a random variable X greater than a set of data points X_n . I have a set of data points X_n that are sorted by X values. Lets say I want to get the $P(X > X_2)$ and $P(X > X_3)$ for the random variables X . How can I go about doing that in R? I'm not looking for a direct answer to the question, but rather how to accomplish that in R. I'm also not looking for a direct link to a solution. I would like to learn how to do that in R because it's going to become more useful in a future project. A: In R, you can use the cumulative distribution function for the random variables, which is what you are looking for. In your case (the cumulative distribution function), you would want to use something like `x > ci.seq(X_2, X_3)` This will give you a vector of 0 and 1's corresponding to the intervals in between the two random variables. Here is an illustration:

set.seed(1234) n 0cc13bf012
```
