The Elden Ring, an action RPG developed by Grasshopper Manufacture, is a fantasy action game that takes place in the Lands Between—a world connected by twelve portals. There, two races, the Elden and the Flora, battle each other and control the land of Al Deplorata. A man—the protagonist—stands between the two, finding himself caught in the crossfire. He was being chased by an unknown foe. More than anything else, this man wished only to survive. He heard people speaking nearby, and his heart beat faster as he turned his head to look at the people. ... “Um, pardon me.” “Yes?” “I’m a bit lost. Could you tell me how to get to the capital?” “Huh?” “There isn’t much information here. It seems everyone is lost.” “Ah, we can direct you to the capital, that’s right. Just follow this road.” “What a relief, you saved me. Thank you.” The man received an unexpected reply. He knew it was unlikely that people would save him. It was far more likely that he would be killed and devoured by the monsters lurking in the dark forests and jungles of the Lands Between. The man hesitated. Perhaps he should keep his original appearance, so as not to attract the attention of wild and dangerous beasts. “I shall change my appearance.” “Do as you wish.” “Thank you.” The man changed his appearance. In exchange for his life, he changed his appearance to one that would lead the one who saved him to mistake him for an ordinary man. He followed the directions of the people and went Music in Janaury 2013 – Hear Music From 6 Artist July 31, 2013 I'm often in a rush. From late July right through September I'm always on the road running from one show to the next. One thing I enjoy most on the road is listening to music in my free time, and there's no better time to do this than when I'm on the road. Here's a look at music I've listened to over the past month: Amy Winehouse - "Back to Black" I love Amy Winehouse's voice and the honesty in this song, but I've also been inspired by her movies: Basmati and the upcoming Working Girl. The Kohler Company, the maker of kitchen and bath appliances, said that it will close stores in Minnesota and Colorado on May 3. It said this reduces its operating costs as those stores will be excluded from the lease-renewal process that ended on March 13. Kohler said that the lease in the Minnesota stores fell far short of the quota set by Kohler, which landlord The Related Cos. agreed last year to honor as part of its $42 million, 75,000-square-foot lease. The sales volume in those stores averaged 1,701 mfg units, Kohler said. Under the lease in Colorado, Kohler said sales there averaged just 75 mfg units, well short of what Kohler had expected. "We believe this decision will decrease future operating costs in those markets," the company said in a statement. Regardless, Kohler said the closures will not generate any significant cash for the company. But it cited tight margin conditions and high selling prices for appliance sales as other reasons why Kohler no longer needs all its properties. "Given the current state of the retail environment, we will no longer invest shareholder dollars in these properties," the company said. les jeunes hommes féminines" ("youthful men").
