This is the official soundtrack for the horror survival game, Slender: The Arrival. The game soundtrack has been composed by Mark J Hadley and is part of Blue Isle Studios official soundtrack series. It is arranged and produced by Brenden Frank, and the album features full game sound effects and introduction, and all of the songs are performed by Mark J Hadley. The release has been written and performed by Brenden Frank for the very first time, and the entire soundtrack is created entirely in a very professional way and shows a huge improvement from his previous game work. You can buy the game and try out the DLC in your browser here:

Curse of the Raven - Beast of the Isle - Dedicated to all the naughty girls from the Isle. The Second part of the "Isle of Eshin" series will arrive in a couple of weeks, so stay tuned! If you haven't played the original, it is one of the best horror games ever released on PC and here is why: A first-person horror game with an interesting storyline and atmosphere, good graphics and a great sound design, all set in a not too well-seen fictional setting. But now the game has sold more than a million copies and has won many "best of" awards. But... So they decided to make a sequel: "Ghost Killer Island"! What I like about the game is that there is everything here to make it a good sequel: New setting (there is a new location), new characters and new gameplay mechanics. Since it was released on Steam I have been playing it almost every day (and I don't play this kind of games frequently, but this one is really good!). What I didn't like: It is a sequel. But, I don't think that's a big issue, since the game doesn't get you anywhere, doesn't have a story worth a mention (if you didn't play the first one, you will love it!). It lacks polish. The very first screens look great, but later on, since that is an island, things are very 'blocky'. I'm not sure why they decided to take the road of combining 2D with 3D graphics, since it didn't look good at all and the game was too hard to

Bradley University College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences Bradley University College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences (BPHS) is a part of Bradley University located in Peoria, Illinois. Its professional pharmacy education program is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Pharmacy Education, which is a subsidiary of the Joint Commission on Pharmacy Accreditation. The college is affiliated with the American Society of Health-System Pharmacists (ASHP). History The college was founded in 1949 as the first pharmacy education program established by a university in the United States. It was one of the first pharmacy programs in the country to be established in a professionally accredited college of pharmacy. The college established a professional pharmacy practice program in 1977, which allowed the college to grant its own professional certification in 1981. This designation allows professionals and employers to recognize and respect the professional services provided by graduates of the college. The college saw the addition of a graduate degree in pharmacy in 1995, followed by an additional graduate degree in health education in 2007. The college also offers a general health degree to non-pharmacy majors. The college was renamed as Bradley University College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences in 2010, and began a curriculum revision in May 2015. In 2018, the college announced the opening of a new pharmacy school building, which is currently under construction, along with a new pharmacy practice center in the stadium
