Developer: Kjell Imsland and Henrik Fredriksen and André Nedergaard Game-Design: Snorre Owe Engineer: Svein Bø. Music: Henrik Fredriksen Artwork: Jostein Rud Kristian Vaksdal Installer: Henrik Fredriksen. Settings: Jostein Rud Kristian Vaksdal. Controls: Eivind Fredriksen. Code: Maurits Olsson A: I haven't finished it yet, but it looks like a fun game, indeed. I'm a bit skeptical about the "2.5D" aspect of the game, however, as I would expect something with a full 3D virtual world. If it's actually true that your character's height and direction can be changed after you input your command, then it has 2.5D potential: you're moving, not shooting, and your eyes are seeing around you, not just up and down as in a 3D space. Two other problems: You don't see your surroundings. I'm not a gamer, so I don't know if this is usually a problem for most games, but it's one that I find confusing. You move a character and your immediate environment is also moving. This is sort of nice, until you're in a room with nowhere to go. That's problematic. The game has no way to see what level it is. Are you on a higher one than your character, or the same one? You can't tell. In a game where you can move around a map, there should be a way to tell at any time what level you are. There are other things that could be improved, like: You never see where your character is going, although you know where he is. He's just walking. You should be able to see that. The controls could use some tweaking. It's quite complex. The levels are kind of boring. It's obviously meant to be fast-paced and all, but the levels seem static. If the levels were produced based on a spatial solver, you should be able to get around the space much more efficiently. The sound is not good. You have to depend upon the music to tell you what's going on, which is quite unusual. I hope you won't find my criticisms too damning; I'm not a game developer, just a software

Openfeint Leaderboards available on the Android devices (IOS and PC will come later). Available on 4 Devices: Nexus 4, Samsung GALAXY S4, Nokia Lumia 920 and Google Nexus 7 Gorgeous HD graphics, full 2.5D and a nice game design. Instinctive user interface with a nice touch of retro in some parts. The player has to fight his way though the enemy lines in order to reach the portals in the end of the line. But don't be mistaken, The enemy has some strategy of their own and can surprise you. The user interface is quite natural, even if there will be some new stuff that will be introduced with time and playtesting. There will be a lot of new stuff added and expanded with time, but the game is pretty much complete, new stuff are still coming in so please bear with me until the new stuff is finished. What Game are you? I love playing games, playing games are my passion. I could just sit behind the computer and play games while i walk around doing things. Gaming give me the chance to kill a few time without doing anything important and that's why i get more pleasure and relax. Besides that i enjoy staying up with the latest technology of onlineness and watching the future of mobile gaming. So i am basically a gamer of all types. I don't like games that have nothing going for them except the graphics. If a game look good then it's almost time to buy it for sure. So what game are you? About the Game This is a 2.5D third person Shoot Em Up with RPG mechanics. The player has to drive his character through a line, fighting back the enemy that try's to reach the portal. The player can use the portals to activate booster weapons and the player can go to the two dimensional side, look up the minimap and use it to get a better look on the enemies position. The character can equip different weapons with different statistics. Also the player can equip different armor sets and use various boosters like to activate the shields of the player or exploding everything around. There are various upgrades for the character and also for the player. Several weapons, armor, booster, weapon upgrades and other things can be bought as you progress through the game and you can spend your hard earned money in the shop to equip your character or buy items for your upgrades. The player can not start up a new game as if d41b202975

For more information about gameplay, please go to the gameplay videos page. Mario's Golf is a 2D rpg-adventure for the Super Nintendo Entertainment System. The game was released in arcades by Nintendo in 1992, but never made it to the US. It was only released in Japan with a 100-player mode. Gameplay: Mario's Golf consists of a number of well-designed golfing courses, with the player's character consisting of Mario's body, clothes and a golf club. The player must move around a golf course and tap the A button to swing the club. Don't have a Super Nintendo Entertainment System? No problem! The game is in FBA format which does not require a game console. Super Punch-out!! is an arcade boxing title by Konami, released in 1990 for the Famicom. It is the first officially licensed game featuring the Sonic the Hedgehog character and features plenty of references to the series. The gameplay is very similar to that of boxing games from the era, but there are some noteworthy differences. You control Sonic by swinging his arm in front of him and punching the on-screen opponent, and his speed in a given arena is directly related to his health. If the player gets hurt, Sonic loses a life. Sonic also has three special moves, which can be charged by pressing the punch button before throwing a punch. These moves help Sonic defeat his foes. Each special move has a predetermined range, in terms of how far away it can be used from the opponent. Super Mario Bros. 2 is the second game of the Super Mario Bros. series, and the first to follow the classic structure of the first game: the player plays as Mario and must run to the right and jump to avoid enemies and obstacles. Compared with Super Mario Bros. 1, Mario's new moves include a new projectile that reflects on enemies, a jump-in move, and the ability to roll. In addition, the Koopa Troopas are redesigned into larger, more powerful models, who can be easier to defeat with a powerful weapon. The Legend of Zelda: Four Swords Adventures is a Japanese role-playing game for the Super Nintendo Entertainment System. It is a turn-based side-scrolling RPG set in the same world as The Legend of Zelda: A Link to the Past. The player takes control of one of four characters, with each character having a different weapon and action. Through the game, the characters make their way to four sacred locations

What's new in Plentypede:

. 13 year old Hyunjoo and her mother, Park Jeong-hui, are commuting on the Seoul Metropolitan Subway. Hyunjoo is admittedly obsessed with fashion, but has not heard of Kanye West and his new album Yandhi. Jeong-hui is equally unsure about the motivation for creating a new album, but is hopeful that Yandhi will change Kanye's life. Recorded conversation, Oct 2015. 10:56:19 Hello, I'm Ella Maurer. I'm the co-founder and co-host of Plentypede. I'm happy to speak with you today about, I think, the new album by Kanye West, Yandhi. I'm not sure that anyone has ever said Yandhi. And we obviously haven't played the album, but from the little clips that have been posted of the album so far, it seems that, um, it's going to be kind of, like, out of these two poles. It's gonna be sort of like serving as the answer for the "weird" Kanye, as I may say, and of course, it has a lot to say about the internet, like, one of the singles did, and I think the song we're gonna be playing today is called He died this morning. And I think this is gonna be a good one for us to talk about. 10:57:22 00:00:04 Hello, I'm Ella Maurer. I'm the co-founder and co-host of Plentypede.
