After the first one finishes, I want to do some things depending on which one finished. public class A extends Activity{ protected void onCreate(){ super.onCreate(); Intent intent = new Intent(this,B.class); startActivityForResult(intent,0); } } public class B extends Activity{ protected void onCreate(){ Intent intent = new Intent(this,C.class); startActivityForResult(intent,0); } } public class C extends Activity{ protected void onCreate(){ Intent intent = new Intent(this,D.class); startActivityForResult(intent,0); } } Now I want to check if A finished, then for B to check for C. If A,B,C are finished, then I want to do something depending on which one finished, and if A,B are finished, I want to do something different than C. I saw something like this on the first activity, that might work. public void onActivityResult(int requestCode, int resultCode, Intent data) { if(requestCode==0) doSomethingForA(); else if(requestCode==1) doSomethingForB(); else if(requestCode==2) doSomethingForC(); } But it doesn't work, because I have startActivityForResult before onActivityResult A: there is no need to set

Â My original idea was to make a "Honey I Shrunk the Kitchen" quilt, but when I saw all of the beautiful kitchen quilts floating around the web, I decided I would go for something a little larger. So, instead of a kitchen, the prize for this challenge will be a small table that you can take anywhere!Â The random number generator at www.random.org called my number: #07. I'm going to send you one of my favorite small quilts to inspire you - all you have to do is add a place setting and add a tablecloth or two, and this adorable little table would be ready to dine! I designed this little table to be used in a house, but you could just as easily use it in a hotel, dorm room, desk, car, boat... you name it! The table features my favorite small block in my small block collection, "Honey I Shrunk the Block". Â Â This week, I decided to give you a few extra extras.Â In addition to the great prize, I will also be giving away the following goodies: a $10.00 Shop Tour Visa Gift Card a dinner for two at Grassini's - the best Italian restaurant in Chicago a $20.00 Spa Diva gift certificate a $20.00 Organic Goodies gift certificate a $20.00 Melissa Frye Time Capsule gift certificate a $10.00 Amazon Gift card a $10.00 Shop Tour Visa Gift card a $10.00 gift certificate from Al Wooten To Enter:Â Get inspired, enter, link, play and have fun!Â Remember, you can make your link and post your inspiration in any way you like, be it photos, words, videos... but be sure to provide a link back to my site, and make sure to

In a small, controlled study of 15-month-old babies, researchers found a link between fluoride exposure in the womb and a change in baby's brain development, which they call "non-cognitive impacts." "The amount of fluoride that women and their children are exposed to typically puts them at the very high end of the amount associated with subtle effects on brain development," said lead researcher Robin Dodson, a professor in the department of philosophy and human sciences at the University of Alaska Fairbanks. The study was published Monday in the journal Environmental Health Perspectives. Fluoride, a naturally occurring mineral, is added to the nation's tap water to help prevent tooth decay. Fluoride has been proven safe for children during critical stages of brain development, including the time period between gestation and age two. Yet, children exposed to high levels of fluoride in their mothers' milk and during pregnancy have a higher risk of speech and language delays, according to previous research. The study published Monday focused on the period just before and after birth. Fluoride is an "essential
