Schedule Manager is a powerful program that can manage both simple and complicated task lists. It can determine and follow up a schedule, carry out activities on particular dates and is also capable of assigning dates to individual projects. It can also communicate with various other programs, allowing the exchange of information and synchronizing data. In addition, this program has a database of various files. It is necessary to create a project before we can work on it. This new project is called the activity. It is here that we will store our dates, our lists and notes on the project. The project is the heart of the Schedule Manager. Here you enter the precise data of the project and its beginning and ending dates. You can manage several projects at the same time. It is thus necessary to create a project for each task list we want to manage. However, each project must be linked to a folder. The following points should be taken into account: ■ The system provides a full list of dates and times at the bottom. These can be used as reminders of what should be done. This would not be possible without the detailed information in the activity. ■ The project can also be edited, and the dates of the project can be modified. ■ The user can insert days, weeks or months. It is even possible to completely replace the date by entering the relevant numbers. ■ The user can choose to display the time as a side note or to have it automatically entered. ■ The user can change the notes or add new ones. ■ You can indicate the source and finish times for a project and the time remaining and expected finish of a task. ■ Various settings can be made for the project, like the menu options and the start and end times. ■ The system creates a reminder in case a project is left unfinished. ■ You can compare the current time with the times of the past and can also compare the start and end times, as well as the time remaining with a specific date. ■ You can view the percentage of tasks completed or in progress. ■ You can generate an overview of all projects at any time. You can also print them. ■ If the project has linked a folder, you can see a tree diagram of the directory. ■ You can also calculate the time needed for the project and the expected completion date. ■ You can create a calendar of the different dates and time periods. ■ You can also display the time table from your computer. ■ You can open
