The objective of the game is to learn how to play guitar by hitting notes on the screen. If the player hits a note correctly, the player will gain one point. If the note is not hit in time, the note will be played again. At any time, the player can pause the game to take a breath and practice at their own speed. The player can also use a music timer to increase the difficulty. If the player can not make a note in time, the next note will be played automatically. If a player misses a note, a note will play again after a short break. As the player progresses in the game, the notes become harder and harder until the player hits a note and gets an 'A', 'B', 'C' or 'D' grade. On the first level, the notes are very easy to hit. The player must practice to hit the notes in time. Once the player is familiar with the notes and the timing, the notes on the second level become much harder to hit and are divided into 4 different sections. The player must practice more and more to master the game. The music difficulty level also increases. At lower levels, the notes are high pitched and can only be played once. As the player masters the game, they will notice the notes get softer, slower and more intense.
