Cardiomyopathy is present in 20-40% of patients undergoing coronary angiography (CAG) for stable angina and may reflect myocardial fibrosis associated with left ventricular (LV) dysfunction. Intra-cardiac pressures in the LV may provide information about cardiomyopathy and further study is warranted to assess the value of baseline cardiac filling pressures. This study investigated whether basal aortic distention and LV pressure changes after left atrial (LA) volume reduction by surgery predict systolic and/or diastolic dysfunction in severe LV dysfunction. We enrolled 45 consecutive patients with mild to moderate LV dysfunction (ejection fraction Q: 3D interpolation error I'm working on a 3D scene. When I apply the smooth modifier to a 3D object (like the car) it appears to work fine, but when I apply the smooth modifier to a 3D mesh (like the tire) it appears to work fine, but when I zoom in on a part of the mesh to see if there are any detail holes there is a significant white gap in the middle of the tire.
