TRIM27 (tripartite motif protein 27) is an E3 ubiquitin ligase which specifically regulates p53-mediated cell cycle progression and apoptosis. However, the molecular mechanism underlying TRIM27 degradation has not been studied. In this study, we identified a novel E3 ubiquitin ligase complex, the TRIM27-E2-25K-E3(Cullin5)₃ E3 ligase complex, which is responsible for TRIM27 degradation in MCF7 cells. The major components of the complex are TRIM27, E2-25K, and E3(Cullin5)₃. The E3(Cullin5)₃-ubiquitin ligase complex directly interacts with TRIM27 through the RING finger domain of E3(Cullin5)₃. E2-25K binds to TRIM27 and to E3(Cullin5)₃ through aa 123-270 of E2-25K and the RING finger domain of E3(Cullin5)₃, respectively. E3(Cullin5)₃-ubiquitin ligase complex inhibits af5dca3d97

Category:Autodesk Category:Computer keys Category:Software licenses Nottingham Castle Nottingham Castle (,) is a castle in Nottingham, England, situated on a hill that can be accessed from the city centre. It is one of the city's most visited tourist attractions, and is situated a short distance from the centre of Nottingham. It stands on part of the site of the old city wall, now enclosed by the present 18th-century City Walls, with the Cathedral of the Holy Cross beyond. Etymology The earliest known mention of the name is in the Domesday Book of 1086, where it is known as Portenu(t)enghe, 'the castle with the Port gate'. It is said to have evolved from Porta 'gate' and the Middle English suffix -enghe, which produced modern Engle (English) as a derivative. History The first English king to be crowned at Westminster Abbey, Eadred of Wessex, was crowned at Nottingham Castle in 955. The Normans built the present-day castle on the site of the older castle. It was constructed using red sandstone from Sherwood Forest, just a few miles away, although it was quarried and transported across the border into England. The castle is a Grade I listed building, one of 1,195 listed buildings and structures in the city. It stands on the highest point of the city, and in the centre of the city walls, and is where the city's Charter was signed in 1237. The castle was the location of the Battle of Boroughbridge in March 1322, during the First War of Scottish Independence,
