Now i have to deploy that application into a production environment in Oracle Database. I know that Oracle has released Oracle Database 12c, including features like Security, Resource Manager and many others. Do you know if i could use this features in my application in a Oracle Database environment? Do you know any open source tools like Hibernate OGM which could be used in production environments? Thanks A: Security in Oracle 12c Oracle Database 12c is equipped with powerful security features that protect the data in your databases. Resource Manager in Oracle Database 12c Oracle Database 12c delivers Resource Manager capabilities to help you make informed decisions about sizing of and memory used by your applications. These features are not available in App engine and your application will need to comply with their own (limited) security and memory restrictions. Other Features Other new features in Oracle Database 12c include: Database encryption: You can encrypt data at rest and encrypt connections to Oracle Database 12c. Oracle Streams: This database feature enables applications to use transactional processing capabilities that are similar to using the Oracle database as a transaction processing service. Deploy graphics and multimedia applications have become popular in recent years, and are used in a wide variety of products. The demand for data processing in these applications has increased dramatically in recent years. Thus, there is a large installed base of data processing platforms that need to be upgraded in order to take advantage of more recent technologies. For example, video display systems, such as desktop displays, laptop displays, and the like, are now receiving increased processing capabilities. As newer technologies are implemented in these video displays, such as video graphics array (VGA), super video graphics array (SVGA), and the like, there is a continuing demand for improved support of these video graphics array technologies by the processors. Typically, increased processing capability is achieved by adding more processor units to the video display system to handle these additional tasks. However, adding more processor units increases both the size and power consumption of the video display system. In addition, for system designers, it is desirable to maximize the use of the space in the video display system and minimize the number of processor units used. Thus, there is a need for video display systems that have increased processing power without increasing either the size of the video display system or the number of processor units needed to support the video display system.Libya at the 2015 African Games Libya competed in the 2015 All-Africa Games held in St. Petersburg, Russia from 19 July to 2 August 2015.
