Auslogics Disk Defrag Professional 9.3.0 multilig.By Bob St. John WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The U.S. government is conducting surveillance of a domestic "radical right" movement seeking to "destroy" the federal government and individuals sympathetic to the United Nations, a Department of Homeland Security official said in an email to a group of churches. Harmony Public Media, which provided copies of the email to Reuters, said the DHS was also monitoring, recording and photographing political demonstrations and other events held by members of a national anarchist movement. In the email dated September 17, the DHS official, Brian Seitz, wrote to a group of churches representing those "who may be susceptible to sedition and the extreme right, in particular anarchism and radical right extremism." The email said the United States had been monitoring individuals and groups
