Q: compile swift to swift-4 as part of a larger project I have a large project built in swift3.x that is now one of the dependencies in a project built in swift4.x. I want to compile it now to support Swift 4. However, the generated code is Swift 3.2 and gives an error if i try to run it in a Xcode project that has been updated to Swift 4. Is there a way to do this without changing the generator settings (which will of course be required)? A: Currently you cannot mix Swift 3 and Swift 4 in the same project. You'll need to re-generate the Swift 3 part of the project. So, besides the preprocessor settings, you need to change your Swift 3 code to suit Swift 4, and you'll need to regenerate everything to do this. The present invention relates to a solid-state imaging device and a manufacturing method thereof, and in particular to a vertical-type solid-state imaging device and a manufacturing method thereof. A variety of solid-state imaging devices have been proposed heretofore. In particular, there has been proposed a solid-state imaging device comprising a light-receiving unit (photodiode) for converting light into an electric signal, and a charge transfer region for storing electric charge obtained by the photodiode. As shown in FIG. 34, a conventional solid-state imaging device (hereinafter, referred to as a CMOS image sensor) comprises a light-receiving unit (photodiode) 108 for receiving light, and a charge transfer region 110 for receiving electric charge obtained by the photodiode 108. An electric charge is stored in the charge transfer region 110, and outputted from a terminal 112. In the solid-state imaging device, however, a noise component is superimposed when electric charge is transferred to the charge transfer region 110. This noise component causes a problem for outputting a good-quality image. FILED

Q: use thread after building runnable object? here is code: public class NotAlone implements Runnable{ private int id; private String name; @Override public void run(){ System.out.println("hello"); } public static void main(String[] args) { new NotAlone(1,"notalone"); new NotAlone(1,"notalone1"); Thread thread = new Thread(new NotAlone(1,"alone1")); thread.start(); thread.join(); } } my question, after I build NotAlone object, does it still contain "hello" string or not? and If I want to build NoAlone object again, can I do that directly? (like compiler add thread object into constructor, and then into main method) or maybe I should use thread's methods after get object from new method? A: No, your object is not executing anything, because it is just a data structure. When you call a constructor, it does not execute the code it knows about. It's just a constructor called by the compiler, which does nothing. If you want to add some execution, you should use a separate method, which executes the method. However, you should only create one NotAlone per thread. Newman, Missouri Newman is a city in Franklin County, Missouri, United States. The population was 659 at the 2010 census.
