Sep 20, 2019Structure elucidation of butanolide and flavonoid derivatives: stereospecific iodolactonization. gamma-Butenolides and flavonoids are found in a variety of natural sources and have shown biological activity. Iodolactonization of alpha,beta-unsaturated esters, followed by treatment with n-butyllithium, gives formation of all-cis-gamma-butenolide oximes, whereas alpha,beta-unsaturated carboxylic esters are converted to oximes that contain two stereogenic centers, that is, a ketone and an oxime. A general procedure for the stereospecific preparation of gamma-butenolide oximes was developed which entails iodolactonization of alpha,beta-unsaturated esters in the presence of p-toluenesulfonic acid-dioxane and followed by the acid-catalyzed reaction of oximes with n-butyllithium. This general procedure was also used to determine the structures of the three major components of the lacrimatory factor in tears of patients with vernal keratoconjunctivitis. Three synthetic gamma-butenolide oximes were also prepared and characterized by infrared and ¹³C NMR spectroscopy.Puzzle pieces in the form of fine powder that are compacted by means of pressure-filled pistons are known and are described, for example, in U.S. Pat. Nos. 2,517,736 and 2,546,427. Such pieces are preferably produced from a powdered plastic material containing glass fiber and are made according to the process described in U.S. Pat. No. 2,521,678. The process described in that patent, commonly referred to as hydraulic pressing, comprises forming a pressing mixture consisting of the plastic powder and glass fibers and compacting the mixture under the influence of pressure inside the vessel. This powder compact is subsequently broken up by means of a tool that is movable in a vertical direction at a prescribed rate. The broken-up pieces which retain the shape of the tool constitute the finished articles. The finished articles are then taken from the vessel and cleaned before they are packed and packaged for shipment to customer. The general shape of the tool depends upon the dimensions and configuration of the finished article. The tool has at least one inclined surface that is used for breaking up the compacted mixture and
