Last weekend I went to the 3D-party and I found myself playing a lot of Rogue-likes. Those games are really fun and it was always interesting to me that they are evolving more and more. A while ago I decided to make my own game but it took quite some time to make and I gave up the idea some times. I feel like I was a good indie-game-dev, but I don't feel like I'm ready to call it quit and quit. So I decided to give this another try and I made this game. If you like my game I'd be very grateful if you could leave a review! P.S.: Some people might think this is a great remake of the Rogue game, but I've made some new things: - I didn't remake Rogue, but it inspired me in some areas - All levels are original concepts. - Time-limit - I've added the time-limit and a trial-mode A: The soundtrack is pretty great, would you be willing to share it? I've made some changes to the game, namely: A Trial-mode New graphics (3D) Fixed a bug with starting positions Adjusted weapons Use different starting position, allowing for some different levels Level-design Redefined some levels Added a Newgrounds logo Number of levels: 45 Difficulty levels: Normal & Hard Trial-mode A mode where each level has a fixed time-limit A mode where you can play a level more than once New graphics for trial-mode (3D) Adjusted weapons for trial-mode New levels: 6 Levels Default: Padded Room 3 Levels Default: Zero-G Room 3 Levels Default: Saturn Room 3 Levels Default: Demon Room 3 Levels Default: Fountains Room 3 Levels Default: Training Room New graphics (2D) Added a timelime counter Adjusted weapons Music: - Original Rogue soundtrack by Douglas Cowie - Some other rooms music from heimer's soundtrack Current sound-effect can be downloaded from here: Feel free to download it and play! They flout the rules by using "virtual private networks," bogus proxy servers, and other methods, but whatever works for them ultimately breaks down, and the problem grows exponentially as netizens "go dark." In a new report from the China Internet NetworkInformationCenter (CINIC), the country's leading censorship/proxy monitor, they measure just how much the Great Firewall is being circumvented. published:12 Sep 2014 Battle Quotes of WW2, Wars, and Military, with meanings DVETheatreCompany proudly presents their latest original screenplay BASKET CASE! As one of the few inhabitants in Edengrall you are now part of its small community. But none of them have experienced the hardships of living on a dangerous island... I've been playing the game since week 1, pre-order was when I was still in highschool, and I've played pretty much all it's content over and over again, saving some of the cities, houses, and achievements. The only thing that I find lacking is the non-existent city busses. It would be so much more fun to ride around Edengrall with a bus full of people! As someone that has been playing it for months, there are some things I've noticed on version 1.2 that I would like to see implemented. 1. Here is a quick list of things that I would like to see in the 1.3 release: - City bus service: make a bus that follows the location of your house, so if you have lots of cars, and towns/cities all around you, the bus will travel there and drop you off. - New city bus route: you would need to add a new slot for any routes, with a random starting point, and you would have to add bus stops for each spot.
