1. Field of the Invention The invention relates to compounds of the formula I and to pharmaceutically acceptable salts thereof, which inhibit Factor Xa and, thus, are useful as anticoagulants or antithrombotics.

2. Description of the Related Art Factor Xa is a member of the trypsin-like serine protease class of enzymes. A one-to-one binding of factors Xa with factor VIIa is required to activate prothrombin to thrombin. Factor Xa is formed in the liver and is secreted into the blood where its major function is to convert prothrombin into thrombin. Thrombin in turn converts fibrinogen into fibrin which is an essential component of blood clots.

Overproduction of thrombin is associated with several disease states including but not limited to cardiovascular disease, thrombosis, septicemia and stroke. In contrast, underproduction of thrombin is associated with the bleeding disorders hemophilia A and B, and von Wille e79caf774b
