Legends & Lore is an Adventurer driven tabletop role playing tool that was built to take full advantage of the VR tech. In Legends & Lore you and your friends will be able to experience the world of Legends & Lore together in an immersive VR environment. It's designed to work with VR headsets such as Samsung Gear VR and Oculus Rift, and the desktop version supports PC and Mac. Legends & Lore is a free to play tool that will be a part of our ecosystem going forward. The concept is that you can use the Legends & Lore tool as a Game Master (GM), or you can roleplay as an Adventurer in a story created by a Game Master. We have ambitions for this tool to be a single platform where players can create and experience virtual tabletop adventures together. The tool is designed for one to four players, and each player can play as either an Adventurer or a Game Master. When players choose to play as Adventurers they become part of an in world story that the GM is creating. When players choose to play as Game Master they are responsible for designing the world and NPC's in it. Like any tabletop RPG, the goal of Legends & Lore is to roleplay a story together. To make that experience more enjoyable and interactive, we've set up the game to allow each player to choose their actions, and importantly, their dialog options. Your words and actions will significantly influence the story, and each other's actions. The actions you are able to control as an Adventurer has a direct effect on the flow of the story. You may choose to leave a conversation blank, or ask the other player a question that leads to an action. This interactive storytelling style allows for great roleplaying without having to master a character class, or pick an alignment. There is a roleplaying style for experienced roleplayers, and there is a roleplaying style for more casual players. Each player can be as hard-core or casual as they want to be! Legends & Lore allows for a roleplaying experience that is completely dynamic. There is no skill, no class, no classes, and no alignment. We are excited to bring Legends & Lore to you guys, and hope you enjoy it! Gameplay Elements: Player Interaction: Each player can be as hard-core or casual as they want to be! They are given a set of tools and roleplay the story together, with their dialog choices influencing the outcome and flow of the story.

Transcriptional and posttranscriptional control of BRAF gene expression in human cancer cells and association with clinicopathologic features. Human BRAF mutations are one of the most prevalent oncogenic events in human carcinoma and a potent driver of tumorigenesis. The human BRAF gene is transcriptionally activated by the transcription factor complexes AP-1, PEA3, and NF-kappaB in a growth-dependent manner. Treatment with an AP-1 inhibitor decreased the level of transcript and protein, suggesting the potential of pharmacologic agents capable of blocking AP-1 activity for therapy of BRAF-driven cancers. We identified cis-acting, specific mutations in the initiation and termination of transcription of this gene in human cancers. Transcription is attenuated by these mutations because they increase the length of polyglutamine stretch in the C-terminal located serine kinase domain of BRAF. We demonstrate that one of these mutations attenuated transcription and protein translation by an alternative mechanism. We extended our observation to amplification and truncating mutations of the gene which are associated with nearly 60% of melanomas. The short stature of this polypeptide appears to be cytoskeleton-directed. In this process, the cytoplasmic/perinuclear localization of BRAF protein is abolished by a nonsense mutation with consequent reduction of the size of this protein. We show, for the first time, the expression of pathologic BRAF protein in colon, breast, and ovarian cancer, suggesting the

GM to pay up to $35bn for Alstom assets General Motors will pay $35bn (£21.9bn) for Alstom, the French giant that owns power plants, factories and rail equipment, in a deal that will boost both sides' financial strength. The US carmaker said it would hand over $16.8bn to acquire the transport assets in its existing deals with Alstom, which is also a maker of trains, in a bid to create the world's second-largest train maker. American and French officials signed off on the transaction, which is expected to close by the end of the year. "For General Motors to face the global market, a strong European presence is important," GM chief executive Mary Barra said in a statement. The deal will help GM overcome challenges in the US market as it struggles to cope with stiff competition from industry and regional rivals. GM said it expects to book about $10bn in cost savings and other benefits from Alstom's operations. While it is the largest scale of transaction GM has undertaken in years, analysts say the company is suffering from a financial crisis that has cut into its bottom line. The company has been kept alive by government-backed fund Cerberus Capital Management, which bought a 60 per cent stake in the company for $1.3bn in 2012. Vincent Bollore, Alstom's chief executive, said the combined company would create a global leader in products and services as well as providing "solidity, robustness and visibility in the future". Alstom was formed in 1999 by a merger of the French companies Alsthom and Ansaldo Breda SpA, adding the train and bus businesses. Now the Paris-based firm has named the board that will run the new company, including Bollore, chief operating officer Ralph Dubberke and head of d41b202975
