Voyage is a cinematic adventure game capturing the essence of shared exploration. Whether you decide to play by yourself or cooperatively, the journey will revolve around two survivors in search for answers of a long-forgotten past. Embark on a voyage, unravel a mystery and find a way home together. The diabolical plot to pervert the future of civilization is only the beginning. You are on an epic journey, full of mystery, adventure, and peril. Your every move alters the present, and the future is forever changed.

You'll need help from the people around you to navigate the dangers of this world and to find a way back home. Welcome to Voyage, a wordless, hand-painted adventure game where every scene is a quest, every moment is your chance to uncover the truth, and every path is your only guide. Feast on the epic soundscape crafted by the composer behind video games Snipperclips, Pikuniku and Lovely Planet: Calum Bowen. Share a single keyboard and mouse, or take control of both with any compatible gamepad or keyboard and mouse. This game has been designed with accessibility in mind. Even if you don't use a gamepad or keyboard, you can simply use your mouse to control the game, or you can alter the controls to your personal preferences. The game is also easy to use: if you don't know how to play an adventure game, Voyage is perfect for you! Requirements: How to Install Voyage: Required disk space: 4.0 GB Required OS: Windows 7 and above How to Play: As of now, Voyage is specifically made to work on Windows 7 and above. Voyage is a wordless, hand-painted cinematic adventure game taking place in a world where the player guides two survivors through a series of wordless, hand-painted environments. The game is designed to be a shared experience for two players. The player is only seeing a small side-portion of the world, and both players need to collaborate to gather the necessary clues to uncover the mystery. The game also features easy controls, allowing the player to simply use their mouse or keyboard to control the game (with recommended controls for keyboard and mouse). The game also features a non-violent style of storytelling, where killing monsters and evading traps are avoided. About the Game: A cinematic adventure game about a group of

In this prototype version, the level editor is only accessible while playing. This feature will be available in the final version of the game.

Generate Random Missions: You will be able to create multiple different random missions for your game.

Configurable: You can configure your options at any time, including options for the level editor.

Rethink Order: There is no set order to finish the game. If you get stuck on a puzzle, you can always change your way around. Play, fail, learn, and fail again.

PICO FUSION is a local multiplayer action game for 1 to 4 players in which you'll manipulate light-controlled objects such as prisms, rods and mirrors in order to perform special effects, creating and controlling the game environment. PICO FUSION is the perfect game to play alone, with friends or with your kids. You'll play as a 2D character who controls an in-game avatar, and whose actions are limited by the position and orientation of physical objects (spheres, cones, cubes and boxes). You'll need to navigate your character in order to manipulate light-controlled physical objects in the game. Each physical object will act as a constraint on the character movement. The ideal position and orientation of the physical objects allows to move and perform special effects on the in-game character and the environment around him. If the character performs too many or too few special effects on the environment, his health will be reduced. There are two different health bars, one represents the physical health of the character and the other represents the mental health.

PICO FUSION will contain ten levels with increasing difficulty.

ReviewsGameplay- It's a simple title and some of the movement/action is clumsy but i like that it shows and emphasis on personality- It's a silly game and it doesn't try to be anything else. It's enjoyable and that's all that matters. This is a multiplayer game in which you control an avatar in a series of enclosed stages. In each stage, you can select a puzzle to solve. Solving a puzzle will consume the avatar's life bar. Once a level is complete, the next stage will begin.

Dodge or Die is a action-puzzle hybrid game for up to 4 players. The game takes place in a 3x3 square world with 9-segment puzzles as the game's central mechanic. Players are tasked with working through these puzzles in order to survive the 2D world of dodge or die. In addition to dodging enemy

Hi everybody! Just got my L50s a few weeks ago. I've been doing fun stuff for the lower echelon of homebrew. Both a Rockmite and a FakeYu. I've been squirrelling away mroe time reading stuff about the mods and the T50 eventually making the step up to get into the pro level stuff. Being the cheaper alternative I'm in. Added an imager board and did some testing. My question is does anybody here have a clear opinion on the bench speed attainable with a diy. I understand they are mostly used to take the long way around a beaker setup. I'm now going to put my Diy out there then go a step further and run homemade YU with the flexvolt body on it then send the flexvolt to uvtech to be fitted to various other bodies. I like the idea of alot of small bits laid out in advance and done completely in advance. Alot like the Caperboards idea. But I'm still in the first step. Just trying to learn basic things about modding. Just really hoping for tips on what point when I have everything wired and all the mods made do I actually go from the DIY to the real body....doesn't seem like the point to me. I find it so confusing when people first start out and wonder what's going on. I have run several labs of some efficiency of some mods that have been done to improve voltage and results in ci's compared to DVI do they make a big difference what about comparing and benching all new mods with one another? I'm imagining that they're going to make different findings that in turn would point to where or what part of the body is easiest to modify. The L50 is a perfect machine to be the evaluation machine. Any manufacturer will want that machine or something very similar to it. When it comes time to purchase, they are likely to price them very similar but when you compare the different companies they can have some distinct differences in design, yield capability and experience. I know that several of the multi-volt makers are flying under the radar but they are more serious about designing and making these machines. They do not rely on others to provide them with pressed glass and other materials they will produce for themselves. They talk about having standard designs or build it how you want. Nothing is set in stone though. Not likely. However, I think that is what makes them the different companies.

You are Eustace of Winchester, the best sniper of your time. You are given a chance by the Queen to kill William, the prince, who has murdered your father and mother. You must accomplish this task and prove yourself the best sharpshooter. Shoot to hit target with the best accuracy and precision. Click the mouse or aim at a target and bring it down. You must be ready to beat the highest score. Save the world. September 17, 2013 I've always said that the best part of being a photographer is the incredible detail that you capture in your pictures. My daughter and I have a mad love for Jaws: The Revenge, but to me, the best part of Jaws: The Revenge is the fact that you can see the pores on my daughter's face at the end of the day. I can say that I'm pretty sure that we're not the only ones with that love, because Jaws: The Revenge was a huge hit last weekend, with a sequel already in the works. Speaking of sequels, I'd like to introduce you to another set of movie sequels that I'm very excited for: Some of these, like Man of Steel and the upcoming Jurassic Park 4, are a bit obvious, but I didn't know that there was a sequel to Rocky in the works until I saw this movie. I don't think I've seen a 70's style movie since... The Godfather Part 2, I guess. Of course, this slideshow is just full of Rocky references. Here are some others that you might not be aware of: I'd say that these movie sequels are just as good as the movies they're based on, except for Rocky IV. I'll leave you with a couple of shots from the last 12 months. My daughter is always good for a good laugh, even if I find her a little confusing at times. September 9, 2013 Hello friends! As you might have noticed, I haven't been terribly active here on the blog. This is mainly because I've been focusing on my teaching duties for my graduate program. My courses are not very technical, so I don't feel like my photography is getting much better. I also don't want to put out a contentless blog. I'm still in the middle of preparing for my final course in graduate school, so I'm afraid that a lot of the photography I do will be filled with spelling and reading errors. If any
