A: It's a known bug in Windows 7 and Windows Server 2008 R2: MEXICO CITY (Reuters) - Public health officials on Monday canceled flights to and from Mexico City's international airport until further notice, the latest flight cancellations in a country crippled by the coronavirus outbreak. Mexican health authorities said in a statement that the move was a precautionary measure due to the ongoing threat of transmission of the disease. Airlines were not affected, according to Mexican government spokesmen. Public health officials did not specify a particular threat against the country's passengers, suggesting that the move was a precautionary measure in the face of more stringent controls aimed at stopping the spread of the disease. Mexico has confirmed a total of 11 cases of the coronavirus, including seven people who developed the disease overseas and four cases reported by first-time travelers who had no connection to China. One of those patients, a U.S. citizen, died in the hospital where he was being treated, the National Institute of Health (INSA) reported on Monday. He had died the day after arriving at the hospital in a critical condition, it added. On Tuesday, Mexico's federal government issued guidelines calling for the use of thermal cameras at points of entry into the country and the suspension of programs aimed at repatriating Mexicans returning home from China, Italy, Iran and South Korea. The move came just one day after Mexico requested nearly $25 million in U.S. dollars to buy anti-viral drugs to fight the spread of the virus.
