Studies on the relationship between luteinizing hormone and oestradiol in gilts with a constant level of prolactin. The effects of a constant level of circulating prolactin on the relationship between luteinizing hormone (LH) and oestradiol-17 beta in gilts were studied. The replacement doses of prolactin, as judged from the LH response, increased in a dose-dependent manner (1, 5, 15, 50 mug i.p.). Within 2-3 days, the LH values tended to normalize. The oestradiol concentrations increased in a dose-dependent manner to a maximum at 18 hours, and subsequently decreased. In the low dose-prolactin treatment, the LH values closely followed the oestradiol concentrations. In the high dose-prolactin treatment, the LH values were significantly lowered at each sampling time. A similar phenomenon was also observed in the control gilts. A significant positive correlation between LH and oestradiol was also observed in both treated and control gilts. (- 8) / 1 5 2) .
